Dr. Yushi Uchimura, Dean,
Medical Faculty,
University of Tokyo,
Hongō, Tokyo

Dear Dr. Uchimura:

I appreciated receiving your letter of 10 August. Every contact I have had with the Medical Faculty and the staff of the Division of Health Care and Nursing of the University of Tokyo has been pleasant and sincerely appreciated.

I believe that the "Nursing School" which has been started at the University of Tokyo is the most important development which has occurred in nursing education in Japan. I feel that the future success of nursing education in this country, and the nursing profession as well, is largely dependant upon this University School. Its continued development has my whole hearted interest.

I shall be very pleased to assist with the program in any way possible in the few short months I have yet to spend in Japan. I am leaving Japan to return to the United States on or about 15 October, 1954. My interest in the Nursing School of the University of Tokyo will continue even though I leave Japan. I shall follow the progress of the school with deep interest and concern for its development and success.

Please let me know should there be any particular way in which I could assist in the nursing program; in the meantime, I am most happy to serve in the capacity you have requested.

Yours sincerely,

Signed

Virginia M. Ohlson
